FUNNY BONE

Military Lesson: Never Volunteer

During basic training at Fort Leavenworth, our sergeant asked if anyone had "artistic" abilities. Having been an architectural draftsman in civilian life, I raised my hand. Then the sergeant announced that everyone would get a three-day pass ... except me. I would stay behind and neatly print each soldier's name onto his Army-issued underwear.

No Such Thing As A Free Yacht

A salesman talked my uncle into buying 10,000 personalized pens for his business with the promise that he would be eligible to win a 32-foot yacht. A born gambler, my uncle agreed. Well, he won, and a few weeks after the pens arrived, his prize showed up: a 12-inch plastic yacht with 32 plastic feet glued to the bottom.

My Sword of Employer

The black lacquer stand holding his prized samurai swords was dusty, so my husband left our cleaning lady a note, reading, "Check out my swords." That evening, he found the stand just as dirty as before but with this appended to his note: "Nice swords."

Parenting Is Easy—I Swear!

The biggest change after having kids was putting a swear jar in the house. Whenever I say a bad word, I have to put a dollar in the jar, and at the end of every month, I take all that money and buy myself a nice steak for being such a cool dad.

Parenting, the Dad-Joke Way

My ten-month-old was sitting in her high chair, twisting and moving all over the place. My wife

WHAT'S THE DIFFERENCE BETWEEN TODDLERS AND TEENS?

I have three teenagers living in my home right now. All the stuff we know about these creatures still holds

By: Gina Stanley

ture: messy, uncommunicative, sleepy, hungry. Pretty much the same qualities they had when they were very young. Turns out, there isn't that big of a gap between toddlerhood and teen years. Like you, I've read all the sappy poems and essays lamenting the mercurial changes that take place when your kid begins to become his own person. While that's true, he isn't charging full steam ahead into adulthood quite yet. Teens become aware of their evaporating childhood and in curious ways, hold onto it just a little longer. Teens can fool you. Their physical appearance can lead us to believe they possess maturity. Nothing could be further from the truth. These are the same people who will lean half their body out the window of a vehicle traveling down a highway. They jump from roofs into swimming pools with little knowledge of water depth. They believe they are immortal. Only a few years removed from a childhood, it's easy to see how sober adulthood just isn't formed yet. They are still in transition. One of the first childish traits they get rid of is belief that mom is the most amazing person on the planet. I distinctly remember a morning with my three littles. Looking at the bunny-shaped pancakes on their plates, my husband asked, "Who made those?" All three of them, with love shining from their eyes, screamed, "MOMMY DID

IT!" Now, when I hear "Mom did it", I know it's not a good thing. Who scheduled son #2 to take the ACT on a football Saturday? Mom did it. Who bought nectarines and blueberries instead of Fruit Loops? Yeah, mom did. Who doles out chores, enquires about grades, talks to other moms about your whereabouts last Saturday night? That would be Mom. And it isn't unadulterated love shining from those eyes anymore. But in all fairness, it's hard to be sure when they are rolling back in their head or always turned downward to their new true love, the cellphone. At age two or three, it's easy to bask in the glow of their adoration, even though it's punctuated with potty training, tantrums and ear infections. A mere 15 years later - a blip in time - they are supposedly getting ready to be grownups. We still see the child we held on our hip or cuddled at bedtime, but now we are relegated to a kiss on the forehead. Teens make mistakes. In this tiny stretch of teen years, they are likely to make some doozies. They are so close to adulthood, but almost as close to childhood. That's why they still need us. They won't always admit it, but they do. When things get rocky, some part of them is glad we are still there with our parental lectures and life lessons. At their best, teens can make you remember why you liked them so much when they were in single digits. Despite their bravado, they still need the adults in their life to take their hand and walk them through inevitable obstacles. They need reminders to brush their teeth. They need someone to give them a hug and tell them they are growing up so big.

What in the world? I had a thirty minute lunch break so I went down Monroe, turned left, turned right on Choctaw, no problems. Came back down Choctaw, turned left on 5th to go down Carl Albert and could not turn left on 6th or strong, entire left lane was closed, so I had to go into Tandy Town to be able to turn around to get back on Carl Albert going west to get back to work this is ridiculous. Do one intersection at a time or get the job done quick.

that when there is no listed address in the phone book? Why? How can I send a complaint without a listing with a telephone number and address. In my opinion poor business.

Hello I have something for Sound Off! Kuddos to the Sound Off that stated for people to get educated about our president even if I didn't vote for him and I dislike him intensely. In my opinion he is lecherous and a warmonger. Thank you, I am in full agreement.

There is millions given to the Hurricane people, which they need cook stoves, beds or sheet rock for their homes and people too help put it together. Not Red Cross to hand them food with Red Cross printed on it. They have a nice

Well I am watching the OU game on KNED 1150 Radio here in McAlester, in living color, it is the start of the game in a wonderful way, thank you KNED.

before you got in opened the flood gates here and we still have no clue how many are unaccounted for that took offense. Damn

We have enter into the end of times. All the anti Christ movements, dehumanizing the Christian faith, along with the total and complete attempt to destroy everything America was founded on. Christians pray reverently that He comes soon.

My wallet is like an onion. Opening it makes me cry.

Everyone is offended by something these days. Now it's a plant of cotton in a Hobby Lobby store. Geez! Give me a break.

Apparently almost no one in America watched the Emmys broadcast. I was one of them. Didn't know it was on and wouldn't have bothered to watch anyway. I couldn't care less about seeing liberal and Hollywood elitists bash President Trump for hours. They are the worst examples to sermonize the rest of us.

This is for the person who found my money purse at the gas station. I was on my way for a medical check up, and I had to stop for gas. I lost my money. There were two appointment cards for doctors, no identification. You could have left my purse with the gas cashier. She knows me as I get my gas there always. To no avail, my money was not found. I want to thank the two gentlemen that came out and tried to find my purse. They left their jobs to help an 80-year-old widow try to find her property. It saddens me to know there are others out there worse off than me.

I do love it when people race up behind you and end up at the same red light. My dad and I laugh at those people all the time.

I remember learning an old saying 50 years ago when I was in elementary school. "Sticks and stones may break my bones, but words can never hurt me."

Watched the Emmy Awards until they put down the president had to change the channels. TV is not worth watching anymore.

I am a Trump-voter who is definitely for putting the DACA young adults on the pathway to citizenship. Deporting them implies that they have a "home of origin." In their memory and upbringing, their only "home" is the USA.

The only way to drain that swamp is for Congress to initiate term limits. One six-year term for all. No career politicians. Electors should receive same health benefits and retirement as they determine for their electorate. They are not princes. And also make lobbyists illegal, as they should have already been. Drain that swamp!

The nursing home tragedy in Florida was horrible. It should be mandatory for any of these facilities, large or small, to have a detailed plan registered with local officials. The plan should be approved by these officials and reviewed annually and again at the start of hurricane season. It should require contact between the facility and officials before, during and after the event. Detailed evacuation plans should be mandatory. Listening local

USDA Makes Disaster Resources Available to Rural Development Borrowers

The United States Department of Agriculture, Rural Development is providing tools and resources to help rural communities recover from the devastation brought by hurricanes Harvey and Irma, Agriculture Secretary Sonny Perdue highlighted today. The emergency procedures will provide additional flexibility for Rural Development borrowers and community partners to help them recover as quickly as possible and ensure they have what they need to rebuild their homes, businesses and communities. "Our team at Rural Development is devoted to supporting rural communities ravaged by the recent hurricanes," said Secretary Perdue. "We are committed each day to the recovery effort, collaborating with federal, state and local partners to begin to rebuild." USDA Rural Development has provided disaster recovery assistance by coordinating with private partners to restore utilities to rural communities in hurricane-affected regions. Rural Development is helping businesses and utilities that are current USDA borrowers by considering requests to defer principal and/or interest payments, and to provide additional temporary loans. Current USDA single-family home loan customers may also qualify for assistance. Borrowers can contact their local Rural Development office to obtain information on potential assistance. Additional information may be found at <https://www.rd.usda.gov/programs-services/services/rural-development-disaster-assistance>.

USDA Rural Development is partnering with the Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA), which is taking the lead to provide emergency housing for people who need it in these affected areas. To find the nearest USDA Rural Development office, visit <https://www.rd.usda.gov/contact-us>.

USDA Rural Development provides loans and grants to help expand economic opportunities and create jobs in rural areas. This assistance supports infrastructure improvements; business development; homeownership; community services such as schools, public safety and health care; and high-speed internet access in rural areas. For more information, visit www.rd.usda.gov.

USDA Assists Florida Children Affected by Irma

The U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) announced today it is making it easier for Florida schools affected by Hurricane Irma to feed students during this time of great need. The measures will potentially impact over 1,800 schools and 1.4 million children.

All students in affected disaster areas in Florida will now be able to enjoy free school meals provided by USDA's National School Lunch Program through Oct. 20. To further streamline program administration, schools and facilities in these areas can temporarily serve meals that do not meet the menu planning or meal pattern requirements through Oct. 20. USDA is also providing flexibility regarding when kids can be fed, given the preparation challenges caused by the natural disaster. "In times of disaster, it's paramount that USDA makes it as easy as possible for our programs to be administered, so no one affected by this disaster goes hungry," said USDA Secretary Sonny Perdue. "Florida is currently reporting shortages of certain food products, so these sensible and timely flexibilities will ensure children receive the assistance needed." USDA has also granted schools the option to operate the Summer Meals Programs during the year for unanticipated school closures. Other flexibilities for affected areas of Florida include: Schools that are not directly impacted by the hurricane may use their commodity foods to provide plated meals to shelters or other school food service operations. The normal eligibility requirements for summer meal sites will be waived to make it simpler for sites to provide meals to children. Administrative and operational reporting requirements will be extended. For more information on FNS assistance during times of disaster, visit www.fns.usda.gov/disaster. USDA's Food and Nutrition Service administers 15 nutrition assistance programs, including the National School Lunch and School Breakfast programs, the Child and Adult Care Food Program, the Summer Food Service Program, the Special Supplemental Nutrition Program for Women, Infants and Children, and the Supplemental Nutrition Assistance Program, which together comprise America's nutrition safety net.

Energy Producers Alliance Calls for Hike in Oil and Gas Production Tax

The Oklahoma Energy Producers Alliance has created a split in Oklahoma's energy industry with a call to restore the gross production tax on oil and gas to 7 percent. The group says it conducted a poll and found 67% of those questioned support "restoring the Gross Production Tax to the historical seven percent for all oil wells." Only 25% oppose the move. The Alliance President, Dewey Bartlett Junior said the proposed increase receives support across partisan lines, with majority support among Republicans with 57%, Democrats at 76% and Independent voters at 74%. A breakdown showed 68% of those questioned in Oklahoma City support the increase while 65% in Tulsa favor it.

"Even at 7%, this rate is still lower than any other major oil and gas producing state," stated the OCPA's announcement. The effective rate in Texas is 8.5% and 8.55 in North Dakota. The Alliance urged its members to contact the legislature and the governor to restore the 7% tax as the special legislative session is set to be held Monday, Sept. 25. But the Oklahoma Oil and Gas Association's Chad Warmington, representing the state's largest producers opposed the call for an increase during the legislative session and is against it now. The Association has pointed out the oil and gas industry is Oklahoma's largest single source for tax funding public services" through its gross production taxes, local property taxes and payroll taxes.

National Defense Act Includes Energy Focus and Projects in Oklahoma

Oklahoma Senators Jim Inhofe and James Lankford voted this week in support of advancing the National Defense Authorization Act, a measure that includes several aspects of energy. "The National Defense Authorization Act is the most important bill we consider each year and upholds our constitutional responsibility of providing for the common defense," said Sen. Inhofe. The measure will have direct impact on military operations in Oklahoma including the E-3 Airborne Warning and Control System planes located at Tinker Air Force Base. The fleet is to be upgraded due to a push by Sen. Inhofe. It also includes nearly $29 million in military construction in Oklahoma. One part of the act calls for advancements in directed energy weapon system prototyping and demonstration. "Recent tests and demonstrations, including counter-UAS live fire events at Fort Sill, have shown the promise of this emerging technology," explained the senator who called for increased funding of research. The Senator also took credit for authorizing language directing the Secretary of Defense to briefing a briefing to the Senate Armed Services committee on the military findings and recommendations of the Electromagnetic Pulse Commission. It was created 16 years ago to assess the nature and magnitude of potential high-altitude EMP threats to the U.S.

Trump endorses Republican healthcare plan amid flap involving comedian

WASHINGTON (Reuters) - President Donald Trump on Wednesday endorsed the latest plan by congressional Republicans to gut Obamacare while a sponsor of the bill faced blistering criticism from comedian Jimmy Kimmel who said the senator "lied right to my face" about it. Trump, on Twitter, called the measure sponsored by Republican Senators Bill Cassidy and Lindsey Graham "great," adding: "I hope Republican Senators will vote for Graham-Cassidy and fulfill their promise to Repeal & Replace ObamaCare. Money direct to States!" After previous proposals failed in the Senate in July, Republicans are using the Graham-Cassidy bill to make one last push this year to pass legislation to dismantle the 2010 law, a goal of theirs for seven years. The Affordable Care Act was the top legislative achievement of Trump's Democratic predecessor, Barack Obama, and replacing it was one of Trump's most repeated campaign promises. Cassidy, the target of Kimmel's wrath, defended the bill, which would give healthcare money to states in block grants, let them opt out of certain Obamacare consumer protections and waive requirements that insurers cover certain benefits, and end an expansion of the Medicaid program for the poor and disabled.

The senator has said any healthcare bill must pass what he called "the Jimmy Kimmel test" of providing affordable care for children, after the comedian and late-night TV host became part of the healthcare debate in May when he emotionally revealed that his newborn son had emergency heart surgery. Cassidy appeared on "Jimmy Kimmel Live!" in May and said he backed access to preventative care regardless of income. "This guy, Bill Cassidy, just lied right to my face," Kimmel said on his show on Tuesday. "He said he would only support a healthcare bill that made sure a child like mine would get the health coverage he needs no matter how much money his parents make."

"Stop using my name, OK? Because I don't want my name on it. There's a new 'Jimmy Kimmel test' for you. It's called the lie detector test. You're welcome to stop by the studio and take it any time," he said to cheers from his audience. On Wednesday morning, Cassidy said his proposal would protect people who are already ill, although it does let states waive an Obamacare mandate that insurers cannot charge people who have pre-existing medical conditions more than those who are healthy. "I'm sorry he does not understand," Cassidy, a gastroenterologist who represents Louisiana, said of Kimmel on CNN. "There is a specific provision that says that if a state applies for a waiver, it must ensure that those with pre-existing conditions have affordable and adequate coverage," Cassidy said. In a statement, Cassidy called his bill "must-pass" legislation and pointed out that Republicans faced a Sept. 30 deadline to get it through the Senate.

October is a traditional weaning and culling time for spring-calving herds. Weaning for value-added calf sales is already underway. This is a time when producers decide which cows no longer are helpful to the operation and which heifer calves will be kept for future replacements. Selecting against ill-tempered cattle has always made good sense. Wild cattle are hard on equipment, people, other cattle, and now we know that they are hard on the bottom line. Mississippi State University researchers (Vann and co-workers. 2006. Southern Section of American Society of Animal Science) used a total of 210 feeder cattle consigned by 19 producers in a "Farm to Feedlot" program to evaluate the effect of temperament on performance, carcass characteristics, and net profit. Temperament was scored on a 1 to 5 scale (1=nonaggressive, docile; 5=very aggressive, excitable). Three measurements were used: pen score, chute score, and exit velocity. Measurements were taken on the day of shipment to the feedlot. Exit velocity is an evaluation of temperament that is made electronically by measuring the speed at which the animal leaves the confinement of the chute. Exit velocity and pen scores were highly correlated. As pen scores increased, so did exit velocity. As pen score and exit velocity increased, health treatments costs and number of days treated increased, while average daily gain and final body weight decreased. This outcome makes perfect sense. Other studies have shown that excitable temperament can diminish immune responsiveness, with more temperamental calves having a reduced response to vaccination when compared with calm calves. In the Mississippi study, as open temperament score increased, net profit per head tended to decline. Pen temperament scores and net profits per head were as follows: 1=$121.89; 2=$100.98; 3=$107.18; 4=$83.75; 5=$80.81. Although feed and cattle price relationships have changed since this data was collected, one would expect similar impacts from the temperaments of cattle under today's economic situation. "Heritability" is the portion of the differences in a trait that can be attributed to genetics. The heritability of temperament in beef cattle has been estimated to range from 0.36 to 0.45. This moderate level of heritability indicates that real progress can be made by selecting against wild cattle. Whether we are marketing our calf crop at weaning or retaining

ASTROLOGY UPDATE

ARIES (Mar. 21- April 20) Visit friends you don't get to see that often. Changes will not be easy for the youngsters involved. Large organizations may try to talk you out of your hard-earned cash.

TAURUS (Apr. 21- May 21) Don't hold yourself back because you think you're too old. Problems with female members of your family may play on your emotions. Don't push your mate away.

GEMINI (May 22-June 21) Anger may cause you grief; control your temper and try to sit back and calm down. Reciprocate by offering helpful hints. Travel will enhance romance and adventure.

CANCER (June 22-July 22) Secret information will be eye opening. You will be a real chatterbox today. Shopping could cost more than you bargained for.

LEO (July 23-Aug 22) Your intellectual charm will win hearts and bring opportunities that you least expect. Your ability to converse with charm will entice someone you may have had an interest in for some time now. Organize social events or family gatherings.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 -Sept. 23) Changes in your home are apparent, and you must be willing to bend if you don't want to find yourself alone. You may be confused emotionally. Tempers will mount if you are too pushy at work.

LIBRA (Sept. 24-Oct. 23) Relatives will want to get together. You will be looking for creative ways to make a little extra cash. You can accomplish a lot if you deal with other people's money or possessions today.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24 - Nov. 22) Changes will not be easy for the youngsters involved. You must be sure not to be frivolous, because as the saying goes, easy come, easy go. If boredom has set in, find new and unique directions that offer interesting friendships.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23 -Dec. 21) Investments are best left alone today. Avoid letting children and friends borrow. They will not be in the right frame of mind to put up with tactless comments.

CAPRICORN (Dec 22- Jan. 20) Things may not be as harmonious as you would like with colleagues or employers today. Talk to people who can give you important knowledge. Changes at home will be necessary.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21-Feb. 19) Compromise will be necessary. You will be able to get good advice if you listen to close friends or relatives you respect. You need to keep the peace and you will have to bend in order to do so.

PISCES (Feb. 20-Mar. 20) Have some fun, but draw the line if someone tries to fast talk their way into your heart. Take care of any paperwork concerning institutional or governmental agencies. You will have to control the way you feel.
