From The McAlester Police Department

We are starting to see more and more scams, some by telephone, and some in person and even some by Email. We are still getting several calls about the PSO scam. The scammer calls you and tells you that you are late on your electric bill and you must pay it immediately to them with a credit or debit card. Once again, PSO does not call their customers and request payment. Do not pay your electric bill by telephone if someone calls you trying to collect.

The publishers clearing house scam is also a frequent scam that we are seeing. The scammer calls and tells you that you have won the publishers clearing house sweepstakes and wants you to send them money so they can start processing your paper work. If you win the publishers clearing house or any other lottery, you do not have to send them money to receive your winnings. Another scam that we have recently been made aware of is an Email scam claiming that you have won the lottery. The Email has an attachment on it and the scammer asks you to open it and fill out your personal information, including a debit or credit card. Do not open this attachment. The Email will look like or similar to this: Confirmation Email Ref No: (PPBLB-77334512216689) Please send your reply to Email: a12360601014@qq.com Following official publication result of the email sweepstakes program released on 27th June, 2014. # New chief of staff takes helm at MRHC

Longtime emergency room doctor Dennis Staggs has been named the new chief of staff at McAlester Regional Health Center. Dr. Staggs, who is also director of the MRHC Wound Healing Center, assumed the post earlier this month after the term of Dr. Stacy Hardy concluded. Staggs was elected to the post by medical staff peers as their liaison with hospital administration. The hospital's medical staff includes about 40 physicians and hospitalists, as well as telemedicine radiologists. Staggs has been on the staff at MRHC since 1985, departing for three years late in the 1980s and then deploying to Iraq for 15 months in 1991. In Iraq, the Navy captain was attached to the U.S. Marine Corps' general medical staff. He became director of the MRHC Wound Healing Center when it opened in February to help patients with chronic wounds. He also continues to serve in the hospital's Emergency Department. "It's a pretty dramatic change," Staggs said of the transition from his longtime practice in the emergency room to that of being a wound care specialist. "It's a slower process. And there's more follow-up with wound care, getting to know the patients better." Staggs was first recruited to MRHC by the hospital's emergency room director at the time. He moved to the McAlester area from Oklahoma City, and enjoys the proximity to his parents, in Eufaula, and his son, Chris Hearod, and three grandchildren in McAlester. Dr. Staggs also uses his medical expertise to give back to the community. At Eufaula, he sees 25-30 people each week at a free medical clinic he first opened 10 years ago for low-income patients. "One of the most rewarding things I do is the work at the Hope Clinic," he said. He operates the Hope Clinic with the help of a physician's assistant and donations, such as the X-ray and lab services provided by MRHC. "We couldn't function without the hospital's help," Staggs said of the Hope Clinic. Meanwhile, he said his work as chief of staff for MRHC is one of representing the hospital's core: Its employees. "The strength of the hospital is in the employees the nurses, the aides, techs and clerks who are vested in the community," he said. "They are the heart of the hospital."

Wound Healing Center

Dr. Dennis Staggs is director of the McAlester Regional Wound Healing Center, which opened in February to treat patients with chronic wounds such as those with involving bone. The highlight of the center is its two hyperbaric chambers, which use high pressure and an all-oxygen environment to treat specific types of wounds. The process promotes healing by increasing oxygen at the body's tissue level up to 20 times its normal level. The wound center offers the only hyperbaric medicine in the area. The MRHC Wound Healing Center is located in the hospital building on the first floor. To schedule an appointment, call 918-421-6000.

How to Buy Whole Grain

Several of our readers have probably heard all about the health benefits of whole grains. Most of them may even have great reasons for incorporating more whole grains into their diets (staving off chronic disease, improving cholesterol, etc). But sometimes, knowledge about why a food is healthful isn't quite enough. How to start eating more of these whole grain foods is also key.

How do you know if a product is a whole grain on the grocery shelf? Look at the package claim. Does the package say 100% whole wheat or whole grain? Don't be misled by claims that hint being wholesome but are not whole grain (i.e. 100% stone ground, multigrain, whole wheat, honey wheat) Always check the fiber content. The fiber per serving should be at least two grams. Also check the ingredient lists. The first item should always be a whole grain such as whole wheat, whole rye, whole corn, oats or brown rice. Foods that contain at least 51 percent whole grains may make a claim about that food's role is reducing the risk of heart disease and cancer. The specific claim may state, "Diets rich in whole-grain foods and other plant foods and low in total fat, saturated fat and cholesterol may reduce the risk of heart disease and certain cancers."

So, if you want to incorporate more whole grain in your diet start with breakfast. Choose whole grain cereals with no added sugar. Next, go whole grain for lunch. Be sure you use a 100 percent whole-wheat bread or pita pocket. Fill it with lots of fresh veggies and a lean cut of turkey or lowfat tuna salad. Consider having a lowfat whole-grain cracker. Purchase brown rice or whole-wheat pasta for dinner. Lots of veggies and a thick sauce will camouflage the darker color of the whole-grain pasta. Exotic whole grains can be fun to experiment with too. Check out the grain or health food section of the grocery store. Choose amarantha, bulgur, millet, teff or quinoa.

For those families that have school children, this is a great time to set an awesome example of making changes in your family's diet since the school lunch program has already made those changes.

US Proposes New Rules For Moving Crude Oil By Rail

WASHINGTON, July 23 (Reuters) - The U.S. Department of Transportation on Wednesday proposed an overhaul of safety standards for transporting crude oil and ethanol by rail, after a number of explosive accidents over the past year. The draft rules, which are subject to a 60-day public comment period, propose new tank-car braking systems, train-speed restrictions, more testing for volatile gases and liquids, and a two-year phase out of older tank cars that officials have said are prone to puncture and fire when derailments occur. The rules follow an 18-month period which saw more than a dozen derailments of trains carrying crude oil, six of which led to major fires and one of which caused the death of 47 people in the Canadian town of Lac Megantic, in Quebec province. "Today's proposal represents our most significant progress yet in developing and enforcing new rules to ensure that all flammable liquids... are transported safely," said Transportation Secretary Anthony Foxx in a statement. The proposed rules called for industry feedback on several options addressing two of the most contentious issues: whether to lower speed limits for trains, a step opposed by some railroads; and upgrading specifications for rail tank-cars. Regulators also released a report showing that oil from the North Dakota Bakken region "tends to be more volatile and flammable" than other crude oil. The transport of Bakken crude has risen sharply over the past six years as oil production outpaces the construction of new pipelines.

White House Rural Council Announces $10 Billion Private Investment Fund to Finance Job-Creating Infrastructure Projects in Rural America

CoBank Pledges Initial Multi-billion Commitment for New Rural Infrastructure Opportunity Fund; More Private Investments in Fund Expected; Capitol Peak to Manage New Fund; USDA to Identify Projects in Need of Investment through New Fund and Other Sources

The White House Rural Council today announced the creation of the new U.S. Rural Infrastructure Opportunity Fund through which private entities can invest in job-creating rural infrastructure projects across the country. An initial $10 billion has been committed to the fund with greater investment expected to follow. Target investments will include hospitals, schools and other educational facilities, rural water and wastewater systems, energy projects, broadband expansion, local and regional food systems, and other rural infrastructure.

CoBank a national cooperative bank serving rural America and a member of the Farm Credit System, is the fund's anchor investor, committing $10 billion to get the fund off the ground. Capitol Peak Asset Management will manage the new fund and work to recruit more investors to add to CoBank's initial commitment. The U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) and other federal agencies will help to identify rural projects that could be potential beneficiaries of financing through this new fund and other private sources.

The creation of the new fund was announced during the first-ever White House Rural Opportunity Investment Conference in Washington, D.C. The conference brought together business and financial community leaders, Administration and others to promote investment opportunities officials, rural in America's rural development experts, communities. "This fund represents a new approach to our support for job-creating projects across the country," said Tom Vilsack, U.S. Department of Agriculture Secretary and Chair of the White House Rural Council. "USDA and other agencies invest in infrastructure through a variety of federal initiatives, but our resources are finite and there are backlogs of projects in many parts of the economy. We know where investment opportunities exist, so we are in a position to help promote these projects among investors. With new efforts like this we can move beyond existing programs and help encourage substantial private investment in projects that grow the economy and improve quality of life for millions of Americans." The Rural Infrastructure Opportunity Fund will allow America's rural economy to continue its forward momentum by enhancing access to capital for rural infrastructure projects and speeding up the process of rural infrastructure improvements. The fund is immediately open for business and more investors can now add to the initial $10 billion in available capital. The fund will allow a wide variety of new participants, including pension funds, endowments, foundations, and other institutional investors that have not traditionally had access to these markets to invest in rural development. In some cases, projects may be funded entirely through private sector dollars. In others, private dollars may be leveraged with and extend critical government loan and grant programs. The new Rural Infrastructure Opportunity Fund and the White House Rural Council's Rural Opportunity Investment Conference are part of the Obama Administration's ongoing efforts to spark additional private investment in rural communities through private sector sources or through public private partnerships like the new fund announced today. For example, USDA announced the $150 million Rural Business Investment Company earlier this year, which allows the Department to help facilitate private equity investments in innovative agriculture-related businesses. Vilsack said today that more investment vehicles such as this are in the pipeline, and other efforts to continue promoting private investment in rural areas will be announced later this year. "Meeting the world's needs for food and farm products, as well as the growing demand in areas like renewable energy, local food, and the bioeconomy will require continued investment in rural places," Vilsack said. "Many major investors in urban centers aren't always aware of the significant investment opportunities in rural communities. If the White House Rural Council can help facilitate even a small portion of the enormous amount of available investment capital into rural places, we can grow

WHY WE SHOULD SUPPORT ISRAEL

I traveled by plane last week. You know the drill – no bottles over 3 ounces; take off your shoes; no food or drink past security. Check your privacy and modesty at the gate counter because some TSA agent may be caressing you in ways that make you extremely uncomfortable. For those of us who remember the easy days prior to 9-11, these seem like inconveniences at best, but feel more like intrusions. Because really – that's what happened. Osama Bin Laden and his goons intruded on our soil in a way we'd never seen before. Not only did thousands of innocent Americans lose their lives, but we lost our way of life. And there is no going back. In 2001, my husband spent three weeks at a work conference in Philadelphia. On the summer evening he arrived home, I took my two toddler boys to the airport. We walked all the way down to his arrival gate and I was able to point out his plane as it landed. The boys were in awe of this giant metal bird carrying their father back home to them. When they saw him appear out of the walkway from the plane, they screamed "Daddy!" and tumbled all over themselves as they ran into his arms. I once saw a young man waiting at a gate at DFW airport with an armload of red roses. He recruited people standing around him to each take a rose and gave them a description of his girlfriend. As she departed the plane, people immediately began inundating her with single long-stem roses. When she could barely see over the top of the bouquet, the young man approached and dropped to one knee. She said yes. These little vignettes of American life have gone missing. One squadron of terrorists took away a little piece of Americana and they aren't finished. Hamas is busy shooting rockets at Israel as I write this. Why should we care? Because they still have us on their radar. ISIS, al-Qaida, Boko Haram – whatever the strain, they have a bone to pick with us. I've heard some people say that the extremists are just uneducated about what America stands for. On the contrary, they know exactly who we are. They view Western values and behaviors as blasphemous. Let's be clear about this: they do not value democracy and freedom. They despise it. That is but one reason they will continue to have designs on bringing the United States to her knees. The Middle East has been broiling for decades upon decades. Palestinians and Israelis cannot come to agreement. Cease-fire talks taking place this week have failed. But as Americans, we need to be aware of this simple fact. If Hamas succeeds in obliterating the Israeli nation as they desire, America will become an even bigger target. If Israel maintains their stronghold and peace in the Middle East actually happens, America will continue to be an Israeli ally. Religious elements aside, it makes sense for Americans to support Israel. Would I like for all violence to end around the globe? Of course. But since that's not happening, it's prudent to pick a side that is most likely to provide more safety and confidence around here. Maybe then, we would start to feel a little bit of our American freedoms returning.

Senate Pro Tempore announces appointees to Capitol repair committee

Senate President Pro Tempore Brian Bingman has chosen his appointees to the State Capitol Repair Expenditure Oversight Committee. On Wednesday, Bingman announced that Sens. Dan Newberry, R-Tulsa, Corey Brooks, R-Washington, and Susan Paddack, D-Ada, will serve on the nine-member, bipartisan committee mandated under House Joint Resolution 1033, the legislation approved last May authorizing a $120 million bond issue to pay for critical repairs to the Capitol building.

The panel is charged with determining the scope and order of repair and restoration work. According to HJR 1033, the group must hold its first meeting no later than September 6, 2014, and has until December 31, 2014, to deliver a preliminary plan to the Director of the Office of Management and Enterprise Services. The committee's final plan must be delivered by June 30, 2015.

"This magnificent building is a state treasure that belongs to the people of Oklahoma. There is no understating the importance of repairing and restoring this historic structure," said Bingman, R-Sapulpa. "We must be good stewards not only of the Capitol building, but of the resources we've dedicated to ensure its structural and architectural integrity. I want to thank Senators Newberry, Brooks and Paddack for accepting that responsibility."

The remaining members of the committee include David Thompson, Phil Kennedy and Steve Mason, who were appointed by Gov. Mary Fallin, and Reps. Mark McBride, R-Moore, Earl Sears, R-Bartlesville, and R.C. Pruettt, D-Antlers, appointed by House Speaker Jeff Hickman.

Harvested forage costs are a large part of the production costs associated with cow-calf enterprises. An Oklahoma State University trial had the objective to economically evaluate stockpiled bermudagrass. The research found that this practice can reduce cow-wintering costs. Forage accumulation during the late summer and fall is variable from year to year depending on moisture, temperatures, date of first frost and fertility. The OSU research has found that 50 to 100 pounds of actual nitrogen fertilizer per acre applied in the late summer has produced 1000 - 2000 pounds of forage per acre. In some ideal situations even more forage has been produced. Studies between 1997 and 2000 found stockpiled bermudagrass protein concentrations were quite impressive, even after frost. In November, the range of protein content of the standing forage was 13.1% to 15.2% crude protein. The protein held up in December and ranged from 12.5% to 14.7% crude protein and declined to 10.9% to 11.6% crude protein in January. To make best use of the stockpiled forage, supplementation with 2 pounds per head per day of 14% to 25% protein feed beginning in early December is recommended. The following is a list of recommendations for stockpiling bermudagrass pastures for best results and reducing winter feed bills:

1. Remove existing forage by haying, clipping, or grazing by late August
2. Apply 50 to 100 pounds of actual nitrogen fertilizer per acre.
3. Defer grazing until at least late October or early November.
4. Control access to forage by rotational or strip grazing to cut waste and extend grazing.
5. If cool season forage is available for use in the winter, use the stockpiled bermudagrass first.
6. Supplementation (2 pounds of 14 - 25% protein) should begin in early December.
7. Provide free-choice mineral (6% - 9% phosphorus and Vitamin A) with a trace-mineral package Late August will be soon be upon us. The old forage needs to be removed. Fertilizer spreading must be planned and scheduled. It is not too early to begin to plan

In your last Sound Off column, you posted a letter from a man who disagreed with Senator Constance Johnson's calls for the legalization of marijuana. He claimed that she was "insulting God" and "twisting the scripture." He even used the word "evil" to describe her intentions. I disagree with this gentleman wholeheartedly, and I'm quite offended by some of the assertions he made. I am a Christian who also happens to believe marijuana should be legalized. The Bible is clear that God created ALL seed-bearing plants (yes, that would include marijuana) for humans to use, and He called them good. May I ask you then, what you believe the purpose of marijuana to be? You acknowledge in your response that God did put it on the Earth for our use, but then immediately say that using it is against God's wishes. Respectfully, sir, you contradict yourself. How do you know what God's wishes are? Studies show using marijuana can slow or eliminate the growth of some types of cancerous tumors. It can treat depression. It can treat chronic pain. It can help with the effects of chemotherapy. It can stop people, including children, from suffering through seizures. How do you know that God didn't intend for this plant to be used as a natural treatment for these conditions? By supporting marijuana legalization, people like me aren't advocating its abuse or misuse (as you slanderously claim), but we're saying that adults should have the right to decide for themselves whether or not they use it. If you don't want to use it, don't. But if I have cancer, and I choose to get relief from using marijuana, I don't believe I'm doing anything immoral, and I don't believe my state should classify me as a criminal.

Can someone explain why I just had to replace two tires off a brand new car from just driving down hwy 270? I am so upset over the condition of this stretch of road. If there was an easier, safer alternative route, I for one would take it!! Please consider fixing this road.

If you have contact information for the person who needs yard mowed could you put them in contact with me? my cell number is 918-490-0476 or they may contact me through this email. I would be more than willing to get their yard mowed for them at no cost to them. Just wish I would have seen the ad asking for help. William Osenbaugh-UAW local 1558 member-McAlester OK

Yes in my opinion, if they're going to raise trash rates and water rates, they need to take that dump thing off our water bills and the recycling thing off! If that recycling place is not pulling its weight by now, it needs to be shut down. I'm tired of paying for it. I'm also tired of paying for a dump we don't have or never will have. That's $5 to $6 a month this woman could use to pay on something else or use on groceries. Because I don't get food stamps. I only get $600 a month. I'm not a beggar but I'm telling you I'm tired of paying for other peoples problems.

Just want you to know, your paper is the BEST around. Thank You from Kingston.

LETS PLAY SUDOKU

The object is to insert the numbers in the boxes to satisfy only one condition: Each row, column and 3x3 box must contain the digits 1 through 9 exactly once. What could be simpler?

Smoking, whether cigarettes, cigars or e-cigarettes -- is under attack from all angles; nuisance, health, non-smoker's rights, you name it. But pot smoking is being legalized and celebrated all over the country. It doesn't make any common sense but it does reflect how indefensible, discriminatory and wacko some public policies can be.

Americans are tired of conflict and war, but no matter how much squishy idealists and isolationists wish for lasting peace and for the world to leave us alone, the world generally isn't a nice neighborhood. There are always dangerous people about, disrupting any peace or calm that has been established. Woodrow Wilson thought the United Nations would solve the dilemma but history declares otherwise. We are a global power, a leader and an exceptional country. Wishful thinking will neither protect us nor absolve us from the obligation of involvement.

My wife has been on Obamacare since March. She has had no problem whatsoever finding a general practitioner and a specialist. She is also getting an MRI, all of which is affordable. Do not listen to all the naysayers; they are people who have no idea what they are talking about.

According to our Constitution, the president and Congress are to protect our borders against invasion. Yet 1,500 people are coming across each day. Why won't our elected officials secure our borders? Also, why is it that our nation's veterans can't get immediate and adequate medical care? Please explain. We would like to know.

We have received multiple calls asking for the date of the McAlester Ranch and Home Show. The date has been set for October 24, 25, 26. And Yes Swamp People from the History Channel will be here all three days for Meet and Greets. More details to follow.

I am completely heart broken! My best friend of fifteen years a few months back fell in love with this woman. I have always been polite to her but no matter hard I tried, she just wanted nothing to do with me, I let it go because my best friend meant more to me than anything. We've seen each other through everything and spoke almost daily up until a couple of months ago, then it slowed way down. Today, I received a text that we can no longer associate because it is causing conflict with his fiancée! For one this woman and I have never had a cross word! He is my children's God father, and they miss him terribly. I don't know what I could have done, I am so lost over this. Any advise would be greatly appreciated.

First I want to start off thanking the people who gave me a ride to the gas station when my car ran out of gas and a thank you to the man in the First National Bank who gave me $5.00 to get gas with. And to everybody else, since you didn't stop to help me, I'm not going to help you when your car breaks down. It's called karma, what goes around comes around.

Has anyone else had this problem? Since I registered on the do not call list, I am getting at least twice as many calls as before? I can't understand this at all. They are the same calls over and over again.
